Every sensible citizen is for the re-election of John Johnson, the man who, as mayor, has and off the debt instead of increasing it.

sible subject under the sun, except potatoes and cocce-nuts. He started out by saying that "party" in the United States was killed by Tweed and Grant. Tweed killed the Democracy, and Grant choked off the Republican windpipe. He then went on to show the beauty of woman suffrage, when the polis would be weeded of drinkards, pothouse politicians, rowdies, shoulder-hitters and thieves, and woman abould preside at the box on the stage of some elegant hall, with box on the stage of some elegant hall, with box on the stage of some elegant hall, with box on the stage of some elegant hall, with box on the stage of some elegant lash touch of terpsichorean excellence—instead of a light. [Laughter.]

Having been requested to speak on religion, he divided it into the above three heads, which were represented by the lawyer, the doctor and the preacher—the lawyer being the personification of the world, the doctor of the flesh, and the preacher of the —; well, he did not exactly say the word, but the audience understood it. Taking first, he disintegrated him in the pestic of one hand, using the other as a mottar. He presented them as leeches, which, like one-horse mayors, it was impossible to alake off the community. He compounded their pile without sugar-costing, and showed the fallacy of the practice of all systems of medicine, except that of hygiene—abstinence from alcoholic drinks and tobacco. He spurned the old-fogy doctrine of inserting patrid matter, from a syphilite child, probably, into the pure blood of another child, and advised people if they did not desire to be poisongly to m ke the doctors write their prescript ins in English instead of Latin. He traced the science of medicine from the time of Esculapius to the present day, and wound the whole profession up by advising people to take care of themselves, and have as little as possible to da with doctors. on the ago; see, 188.20.

When a merchant knows he has a good isiness manager, would be not be worse an a fool to discharge him? The people of emphis represent the merchant and mayor chasen the good business manager.

The leprous distilment: whose effect Holds such an enmity with BLOOD of man, That, swift as quicksilver, it courses through The natural gates and alleys of the body. And with a sudden vigor it doth poset And curd, like eager droppings into milk, The thin and wholesome blood.

[Applause.]

There is no taint in my family for many generations. Yet, in the ignorance of the age, ome little one-horse doctor, for a small fee, akes the filthy matter out of another child's rm, whose ancestors may have been rotten with the syphilis for generations, and inserts linte my blood, shame, and it depends upon he strength of my constitution whether I live if the. Haif the children are killed by this insernal process before they are seven years old. Fourful sensation.] These doctors must have he conscience of a thousand devia. [Laugher,]

MARHAGE IN THE GOOD TIME COMING.

What do you think of marriage?
Marriage is a civil contract which takes a most uncivil advantage of a woman.
[Laughter.] It makes her a slave. Society organized against her provents her from getting an honest living. She has but two chances when chading under the man-patented marriage tile. She must submit to man's lust or prutality, or die of starvation or prostitution, a sickening semastion of a terrible truth.

Should ballot-box put asunder what school-house has joined? Should fear within and falsehood without mark our society forever? Is the tree less than the fruit? Is woman always to bear man to ensiste her? "No." Is not our marriage system making woman promise to obey infanous? (Sensation!) Who made her the slave? Who, man, the master? Who gave the Sickles es and McFariands power to murder for alleged lufringements of marriad the? If husbands can kill the paramour, why have not the wives the right to shoot the mistress? [Secsation.] Where presidential in the same submit to examination as well as the women? (Sensation.) If guorance cansed this inequality, should not knowledge give the remesty? Is not present light better than past darkness? Why should the old fornicalors and adulterers of the age of concubines to held up to us every Sabbata by the pulpit as saintar if arotanne and "Thuis so."

THE LAWYER

was next analyzed. His circumiocutory style of drawing up papers. Where he was sued by the ward, was ably represented by a description of the manner in which his old hat, with all its appurtenances, would be made over to acother party. A lawyer, who could not be an honest man from the very nature of his profession, was traced in his course from the little office in a piccyune, one horse town, to the White House, and then being turned torse on the community to beach the rest of mankind
how to steal.
